

Call not to blame those who suffer for freedom

ALLOW ME TO answer and ask some questions regarding a letter in The Namibian of November 7. I would like to appeal to fellow Caprivians to unite and settle their differences peacefully and then identify the enemy.

The colonisers create a situation where we are divided among ourselves. To them this is an advantage. It is the cancer of tribalism that is being practiced by our leaders that has blinded all Caprivians so that they have failed to recognise developmental needs in the Caprivi.

Please stop regarding your brothers as Subia or Mafwe - that is promoting colonialism in the country.

Please stop the false accusations against Mr Muyongo. Whether you are Subia or Mafwe, the UDP is for peace, unity and freedom.

If you remain in Canu you will be in the opposition party until death and the majority will set up a democratic government if needs be.

You also challenged Mr Muyongo to tell the world where Mr Simbwae is. You know that both were nationalists and that Mr Simbwae was here in 1973. By that time Mr Muyongo was in Zambia. How can Mr Muyongo, who was in Zambia, know the whereabouts of a man who disappeared in Caprivi?

Chief Moraliswani and Mr Ngambela Kalundu and Mr M Mujiwa know what happened to him. Ask them.

Don't blame somebody who suffered for your freedom. When you are in a war, you win or you lose, you live or you die. Mr Muyongo and his supporters did not come into Caprivi and recruit schoolchildren at gunpoint.

Mr Muyongo is a politician who has the support of over 86 percent of the people. The situation and development in Caprivi is deteriorating because of tribalism.
