

...clear that there are more
...becomes to construct meaning. We
...also use cultural knowl-
...of various cultures and their
...peaceful coexistence. By
...having a media sensitive to

Like Father Like Son

ALLOW me space in the favourite newspaper in Namibia, to air my views.

The ongoing crisis between Iraq and the United States and Britain is more like a war show to some of us. If I can recall correctly, in the 1990s we had what was called Operation Desert Storm, the war that was aimed at Iraq. Now again it seems like we are again to see the second part of the operation, now being headed by Bush Jr.

Bush Sr. headed the first part and now we are again to see the other Bush trying to continue where his father left off. Going to war with Iraq will not be the answer; it will only destabilize the peace in the Muslim world. Is there any concrete proof that can implicate Saddam Hussein in producing weapons of mass destruction? If there is not enough proof, why is that the US is concerned with going to war with Iraq?

I feel that we will not be able to enjoy peace even for one year, because the Washington government will try to create war whenever there is peace.

Is there not any single solution, which can prevent the innocent people from dying unnecessary deaths?

If the British government and the Washington government wants peace, why can't they try first to resolve the Middle East crisis and then try to deal with Iraq? What about the United Nations? Is not the job of the UN to see to it that no one can be a threat to anyone? If we live in peace and work for a common goal, which is to alleviate poverty and find the cure of AIDS, we can live better, instead of sending millions of dollars in weapons, which can destroy and kill people, we can use that money to good use.

America will never get rid of its enemies; it must change its foreign policies towards some countries. Change will be better for everyone.

George Hipondoka Jr., Via e-mail