

yet seen Swapo's true support. Once all the makakunyas are confined to base, and our people have come back, you will see what we represent.

Look at the number of incidents since April 1 (ie the shooting of Swapo supporters going back to the north) and see who has been arrested: policemen. Can we trust these same police to keep law and order?

Who's the leader?

THE Pretoria regime has left a disgraceful page in Namibian history by dividing the entire national into regional groups during its occupation of the country. Despite all this, Namibian people have been waiting for the true leader who could bring about the total eradication of foreign domination and oppression in their country.

As the days of independence approach and conditions become more favourable, the question as to 'who is the genuine people's leader' comes to mind.

In order to avoid neo-colonialism and corrupt leadership in Namibian history, the people will entrust the Swapo President who heroically and patriotically succeeded in leading the struggle of the Namibian people, with this task.

The Namibian people acclaim the great Swapo leader, Sam Nujoma, as the genuine people's leader who will create the new state of Namibia with prosperity, peace, democracy, national security, justice and social economics.

Therefore the national is called upon to be vigilant and stand firmly against the enemy's anti-Swapo psychological propaganda; directed at the people in order to mislead them and prevent them from choosing their genuine people's leader because they are afraid of a Swapo victory in the forthcoming elections.

I appeal to Namibians to vote for Swapo and in so doing, score more than two thirds majority so that we can create a new Namibia in which each and every citizen will enjoy fundamental human rights and lead a happy life, free of oppression, exploitation and injustice, under the leadership of Sam Nujoma.

Who is who?

ALLOW me to respond to a letter of Mr P Kaliange which appeared in The Namibian of April 12.

I personally have nothing against the content of this letter. However, as letters of this kind have appeared in the press since the beginning of the year, I regard a response to it as essential.

In his letter Mr Kaliange claims there are only two parties to be noted in the struggle for Namibian independence, namely Swapo and the DTA. In other words, Mr Kaliange denies the other parties the right to exist independently and regard them as of less importance. Mr Kaliange should, however, know that in a democratic country it is the democratic right of any party to exist.

I am fully aware of the fact that Mr Kaliange knows there are many parties that do not agree with Swapo and
