

Not the solution

IT IS unacceptable to deliberately bypass UN Security Council Resolution 435 which is the only solution to the Namibian question. The present interim government disregards the UN settlement plan for the Namibia issue, while it also cannot bring about peace and stability in Namibia.

How can a true Namibian, who has the interests of his country at heart, support that government?

It is also unable to end the balkanisation of Namibia, and the interim government should be rejected. They should know that their assumption of power is illegal and the progressive, pro-UN Resolution parties in particular, must continue to expose the pro-Pretoria and imperialistic nature of the interim government.

The ban on meetings and rallies will not ease the situation, and it must be noted that only a few people are in favour of the status quo in this country. But the majority must rule.

A fair and just election will possibly end the unjust system of apartheid and all draconian laws in this country.

The so-called ministers are delaying independence because they have always played the interests of Pretoria off against their own people. The voice of the oppressed is again reminding them that reconciliation means justice and freedom.
