

US threat to international peace

THE UNITED States of America is fast becoming a threat to international relations. Firstly she agreed to give covert aid to the guerrilla movement Unita, and the result of this is that the President of the People's Republic of Angola will be forced to get more aid to counter the aid given to Savimbi.

Can America then claim to be a leader in maintaining world peace?

Secondly, the US attacked Libya. Is this not a violation of the norms on international relations? Britain should also be held responsible for this attack.

America is one of the superpowers, and supposedly a democratic country. What will happen when one of the superpowers begin to attack other countries?

America gave Unita the aid as if to say 'there is the aid (weapons), go and kill the masses of Angola'.

The attack on Libya showed that America is barbaric.

ZIPHO-ZONKE SIWUNDLA
WALVIS BAY