

Time To Pack Bags

THE following letter by NBC and Pacon Chairperson, Uazuva Kaumbi, was sent to a staff member at The Namibian, and copied to the Editor:

THANK you very much for your positive articles about our film project, especially your article in The Weekender of today (September 28). I hope your boss, Gwen, learns from you, because it appears that she does not know anything about professional journalism. She, Gwen, that is, is one of those White liberals who must be taught that we as Africans are able and willing to do things for ourselves. Her personal fight with me will soon backfire, and I am looking forward to that day when she shall become so embarrassed about the things she lies about now that she will decide to pack her bags and go back to whence she came. That will be good riddance to bad influences. Is it a coincidence that all the private dailies in Namibia are owned and controlled by Whites? Gwen has been editor-for-life of The Namibian! Why is the editor of the The Namibian still White, as is the News Editor? All of this eleven years after independence! Makes you think, doesn't it? All of these realities are part the challenges facing us as Pan Africanists. Let us fight the good fight. Welcome to the club, dearest sister.

We have just received some very interesting video and audio tapes from Africanist groups in the USA. I shall invite you to the public screenings of these videos. Keep up the good work.

Love and Peace.

Uazuva Kaumbi, WINDHOEK
