

US on 'peace'

ONCE, America told the world that the 'constructive engagement' policy was there to encourage peaceful changes in the apartheid policy of South Africa. Yet the Reagan Administration assists South African militarily against the freedom fighters.

I do not know whether Mr Ronald Reagan and his administration know what the word 'peace' in the real sense means. The policy of 'constructive engagement' seeks to perceive communist encroachment on South Africa; and seeks to keep the region safe for American capital and to use the South Africans to police it.
